

BROAD UNDERGROUND FILM SERIES

Infrastructuralisms

7pm • Wednesday • 15 March 2017 • (Scene) Metrospace
110 Charles St., East Lansing, MI 48823

This program features a range of film and video work devoted to the poetics and politics of infrastructure. The work seeks to make visible the buried networks and systems that bring modern communities into being, inspire political activity and imagination, and organize bodies, labor, and commodities. Infrastructure, this work insists, has been—and continues to be—at the heart of debates about citizenship, democracy, access to common resources, and visions of a just public life.
