

Text Authenticity in Listening Assessment: Can Item Writers Be Trained to Produce Authentic-sounding Texts?

Olena Rossi and Tineke Brunfaut

Lancaster University, Lancaster, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland

<https://doi.org/10.1080/15434303.2021.1895162>

Read the LAQ paper

Attend the workshop

Participate in the interactive discussions

WORKSHOP ON PRODUCING AUTHENTIC- SOUNDING INPUT TEXTS FOR LISTENING TESTS

Fri. May 7
11:30am to 12:45pm Eastern

[Register for the Workshop Zoom
Room here!](#)

Come and learn about innovative listening-test passage writing, guided by guest Dr. Olena Rossi!

Sponsored by the English Language Center Testing Office and the SLA Knowledge & Production Lab, Michigan State University

Dr. Olena Rossi has an MA and a PhD from Lancaster University, UK, and specializes in language test design, item-writing, item writer training, and assessment literacy for test stakeholders. Dr. Rossi has extensive experience working as an examiner, item writer, and item reviewer for several examination boards. Join the Zoom and learn with us!

Questions? Email Dan Reed, Paula Winke, or Koen Van Gorp
reeddan@msu.edu; winke@msu.edu; vangorpk@msu.edu

